

Hancock countians react to congressman's death

BY DENA BISNETTE

Hancock Countians who had seen Congressman Larkin Smith at the Ansley-Lakeshore Civic Association Appreciation Day Saturday of the Hurricane Camille Commemorative have expressed shock at the freshman representative's death.

Mary Caillier of Clermont Harbor called it "a great loss to the communities" in his district.

"He was such a gracious man. I was out there Saturday and he made a point of speaking to every person out there."

"My heart goes out to his wife and family. We should remember him in our prayers."

Lee Klein, a Hancock County justice court judge who attended the Ansley-Lakeshore Civic Association event, said Smith had met privately at the Ansley V.F.W. post with a few people about specific concerns prior to attending the appreciation day.

"It's just a terrible, terrible loss to the state and the whole country," Klein said, who had introduced Smith at the event. "He was a man just in his prime who had just started contributing to the state and the country. It was an irreplaceable loss."

Hancock County Sheriff Ronald Peterson has known Smith since the 1970s, when Smith was a Harrison County Sheriff's Department investigator and Peterson was a Hancock County deputy.

They also worked together with regard to the Blue Lightning Task Force, a multi-jurisdictional drug enforcement program Smith was instrumental in starting.

Peterson considered Smith one of his closest friends in law enforcement and felt that having him in Congress would be advantageous to law enforcement.

"This is really unfortunate."

Larkin was doing a good job, especially on the MCI deal. He was also a very dedicated law enforcement officer," Peterson said.

Others said Smith's death would hurt Hancock County.

Randy Castello, president of the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce, said Smith had assisted in efforts to keep the Mississippi Army Ammunition Plant open.

He said he did not feel that particular matter would be affected because it has already passed through the House and is going to the Senate for a vote.

Castello was a cousin of Chuck Vierling, the pilot killed with Smith, and also knew Smith as a personal friend as well as a politician.

"I met him in '72 or '73," he said. "He was the kind of friend you could call for advice; you could go to fish fries together."

He considered Smith special as a politician.

"I think he's going to be missed, by Mississippi and the nation as a whole, because he was a people's representative."

"He'd talk to the people in his district and what the majority of them wanted, if it was good, that's what he was for."

Castello called Vierling "a fine man." He stated that the pilot was fond of flying for non-profit organizations and had recently started flying for the one that owned the plane in which the two men died.

Ronnie Cuevas, president of the board of supervisors, also knew both men.

"It's a great tragedy for Hancock County. Larkin has been a good friend to all of us and has done such a fine job for Hancock County. He will be missed by all and we extend our deepest sympathy to his family," Cuevas said.

Both the board and the sheriff's department have sent letters of condolence to Smith's family.

Cuevas said Smith was a major supporter not only of the grassroots effort to keep the ammo plant open, but was also helping the county with some recreation grants and had given his time to such events as Coast Encounters and the Hurricane Camille commemorative.

"We were in almost daily contact with him about the ammo plant," the supervisor said. "He was always there when called upon and never hesitated to respond to a need or a question."

Rep. Smith killed in airplane crash

BY DENA BISNETTE

Fifth District Congressman Larkin Smith is dead, the victim of an airplane crash.

Also killed was the plane's pilot, Chuck Vierling of Gulfport, a former resident of Pearlinton.

Smith, former Gulfport police chief and Harrison County sheriff, was 45. He was serving in his first year of office.

A banquet room at the Coast Coliseum and Convention Center was used for a 12-hour visitation Wednesday. Visitation will continue from 10 a.m. until 2 p.m. today, when a funeral mass will be celebrated at the same location.

One of his last public appearances was the Hurricane Camille Commemorative Sunday on Beach Boulevard near the Ulman Avenue Pier. He had also appeared in Hancock County at an Ansley-Lakeshore Civic Association appreciation day given in his honor.

After leaving Hancock County, Smith had gone to Stennis International Airport to join Vierling, who was not Smith's personal pilot but was a friend of the congressman's, and fly to Hattiesburg. At about 8:15 p.m., he threw out the first ball at a Dixie Youth World Series there.

At about 9 p.m., the congressman phoned his wife and asked her to meet him at the airport in Gulfport. He and Vierling were flying there in a single-engine Cessna 177.

Camille wreaked havoc, yet taught preparedness

BY DENA BISNETTE

Hurricane Camille caused death and destruction when it hit the Gulf Coast 20 years ago today, but it also taught a few lessons on how to be better prepared for storms.

Bobby Boudin, Hancock County Civil Defense director, said many studies have been done on Camille in order to learn the technical points of coping with such a storm, but people are also more aware of hurricane dangers.

The studies by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, funded through the Federal Emergency Management Agency, have indicated that Bay St. Louis becomes an island during a Camille-type storm. Boudin has maps showing the water levels to be expected during different types of storms.

Much of that information was not available when Camille hit, according to Lucien Kidd, who was Hancock County Civil Defense director at that time. He was one of three directors at the time, but those who handled Bay St. Louis and Waveland are no longer living.

The 10 people who died in the storm, with the exception of one man whose death was credited to Camille but who was actually killed by a heart attack right after the hurricane, died because they refused to leave areas that later flooded.

Five died in Waveland, one in Clermont Harbor, two near Bay St. Louis and one in Bay St. Louis, Kidd said.

He described having to go back several times for many people.

"We started asking them for the names of their next-of-kin," he said. "They'd say, 'What do you want to know that for?,' and I'd tell them it was so we would know who to notify when they died. Most of them left after

Supervisors approve P&H budget increase

BY D.C. HARVILL

A seven-and-a-half percent budget increase for Hancock County Port and Harbor Commission was approved by the Board of Supervisors Tuesday. The commission, however, does not receive a tax millage from the county.

The commission's general operating budget for fiscal 1989-90 is $407,741.80. Last year's was $398,074.62.

The commission operates the Port Bienville Industrial Park in southwest Hancock County and Stennis Industrial Airpark south of Kiln and is supported by revenues from activities at those facilities.

The commission also is allotted a budget for operation of a railroad at Port Bienville.

The new railroad operating budget is $260,990.81, up from $217,548.75.

Sources of revenue include leases, tariffs collected for use of a bulk loading terminal and

Two Bay teens arrested in vandalism/car thefts

BY D.C. HARVILL

Two juveniles have been arrested for the vandalism of several Bay St. Louis homes and a rash of auto thefts.

The two Bay St. Louis youths, 14 and 15 years old, were apprehended Tuesday by Waveland Police Officer Brett Ladner in an abandoned building on Waveland Avenue.

Ladner arrested the teens after a worker cutting grass in Elwood Bourgeois Memorial Park at the corner of Central and Waveland Avenues reported hearing someone in the building. Waveland turned the subjects over to Detective Tom Burleson of the Bay Police Department by whom they also were arrested after giving a taped confession, according to Bay Detective Shane Corr.

They have been charged with grand larceny and malicious mischief in Bay St. Louis and with three counts of grand larceny in Waveland, according to Waveland Police Chief Donald Dorn.

On August 2, the youths allegedly spray painted gang-related symbols on several houses, signs and the roadway on Felicite Street.

They also are believed to have stolen an automobile on Felicite and two others on Surf Street and Adrienne Court in Waveland the night of the vandalism, Dorn said.

The youths also are accused of taking a vehicle from a Sears Avenue residence in Waveland on a subsequent night.

According to Dorn, one of the juveniles was a runaway who admitted to the crimes and implicated the other juvenile.

All the vehicles were recovered shortly after being reported missing, according to Dorn.

After an initial appearance before the Hancock County Youth Court the subjects are being detained in the Hancock County Justice Facility Juvenile Detention Center pending an August 30 hearing.

Use newspapers for more than just reading!

From the number and size of newspapers and pamphlets delivered to our homes we would surmise our people to be well informed. They are. And they know that news print paper is made from trees.

What they do not know is what to do with the enormous accumulation of papers. Before filling your garbage pail to the brim consider a few solutions: Did you remember that sections of crumpled newspaper makes excellent window cleaners? After you have applied the water and ammonia solution to loosen the dirt on the panes, follow through by polishing the glass with the paper. It leaves a sparkling shine—probably something in the printer's ink.

Also by placing several layers of newspaper in your colander you can pour unwanted grease from your bacon drippings, etc. into the colander and discard it. Take other pieces of the newspaper to wipe out the skillet as well as crumbs from the plates in preparation for washing them.

If you are a gardener, try shreds of newspaper that have been soaked for several days in water and work this into the flower beds. It adds humus so needed in our soil.

You might inquire whether any organizations such as Boy and Girl Scouts collect papers for resale. Uses you find for old newspapers cut down considerably on the number of paper towel rolls you would normally buy. If you have pets, newspapers can be used to line bird cages and litter pans.

A thought for the day: Wouldn't it be a happy solution if some enterprising person would start a recycling business and pick up on a regular schedule our plastics, glass, aluminum cans and newspapers? I am told this business can bring a good profit.

It's not too late to learn.

COUNTY AGENT NOTES

By Lee Taylor

It's been a tough year for gardens, no doubt about it. The constant rain just about ruined gardens for the year.

However, for those gardeners strong of heart and full of courage, fall vegetables are just around the corner. Now is an excellent time to plant tomatoes, bell peppers, eggplant and even snap beans. Believe it or not, you still have time to plant squash and cucumbers.

For fall gardens you can start planting the following crops on Sept. 1: turnips, onions, lettuce and mustard. You can seed broccoli, cabbage, collards and cauliflower. There are also several other vegetables you can grow during the cool season.

A few variety names of cool season vegetables include cauliflower, Snow King; onions, Granex; mustard greens, Tendergreens; turnips, Tokyo Cross or Just Right.

Web Spinners

These small pinhead sized insects are back in the news this week. We've received several calls concerning these critters. The web spinner is an insect that blew in from South America about six years ago.

They form a very tight web around the trunk of an oak. They do not harm the tree as they are feeding on decaying organic matter. After their life span plays out, the web will tear up and blow away. If you're determined to spray them, you may use Malathion or Diazinon. The obvious problem with spraying is getting good coverage, and with the insects being 50 to 60 feet up the tree, this is hard to accomplish.

Farmers Market

The Farmers Market in Bay St. Louis still has some good produce available. Some of the produce is home grown and some is sold by vendors who buy and resell.

It's desirable to get to know the person you buy from to determine the origin of the produce. The market is open on Wednesday and Saturday morning from 7 a.m. to noon.

Rep. Larkin Smith,
a man for the people

We join the residents of Hancock County in mourning the loss of U.S. Representative Larkin Smith in a fatal plane crash Sunday night.

During his brief tenure in Washington, he won the respect of his senior congressmen and wasted no time making the wishes of his constituents known.

A staunch proponent of keeping the Mississippi Army Ammunition plant operating past its scheduled closing date, Rep. Smith is credited with the recent successful extension of funding passed in the House of Representatives. According to several sources "Larkin refused to take 'no' for an answer."

Only hours before the crash, Rep. Smith, a guest speaker at a Hurricane Camille commemoration service in Bay St. Louis, reassured the crowd of his continued efforts to save the MAAP.

On Saturday he was honored for his service to the residents of Hancock County by the Ansley-Lakeshore Civic Association.

As chief deputy sheriff in Pearl River County, chief investigator of Harrison County, chief of police in Gulfport and sheriff of Harrison County, Larkin Smith left his mark of excellence in the businesslike reorganization of services and cooperative efforts in the fight against drugs.

An impressive career in law enforcement enabled Rep. Smith to become the first non-attorney member of the House Judiciary Committee. He also championed Coast-related causes such as funding for an Air-Force hurricane-hunting program and the U. S. Coast Guard. He fought for Coast shrimpers and supported a land swap at Camp Shelby and the DeSoto National Forest, where he ironically lost his life Sunday night.

Rep. Smith's dedication to his constituents and people of the United States was readily shown during his seven month tenure. Words cannot express the loss of one who had so much to give.

Hurricane Camille

There are thousands of Hancock Countians who would like to forget the nightmare of Hurricane Camille.

There were the few who never saw the daylight of Aug. 18, 1969, as they lost their lives to the powerful storm.

There were residents who spent the night of Aug. 17 swimming for their lives, whose homes were completely destroyed by water and winds. Many spent that night in the attics of their residences, fleeing rising waters.

Those on higher ground heard the howling of the winds and the explosions of transformers on utility poles.

There were broken windows, lost roofs, trees through roofs, trees on homes, parts of homes missing, cars and trucks destroyed and other types of disasters.

Businesses, too, suffered extensively. Those that withstood the tidal waves and strong winds did not escape damages of some types.

Our county's food supplies were destroyed as the windows of supermarkets were broken and food items were contaminated by water pushed by 200 miles-per-hour-plus winds.

A community which took years to build was all but destroyed in one single night.

Many of us were in a state of shock as daylight revealed the damages of Hurricane Camille.

As a united people, we have come back in Hancock County. Yet, Hurricane Camille will remain with many of us as long as we live. It forever changed the way many of us view the value of life versus material possessions.

Those of us who survived the storm have learned not to take the threat of hurricanes lightly—and to appreciate the compassion of those who came to our aid.

Recollections of
Hurricane Camille

The long night of Camille

Today marks the 20th anniversary of Hurricane Camille and I am reflecting on some of my recollections of the storm and recovery.

So many residents lost their homes completely, while others suffered heavy damages from winds and surface water. Only a few, if any, got by without damage.

Personally, I was one of the luckier ones who weathered Camille, as we had no surface water.

My wife Jane and I lost a new auto, sustained a broken window frame and loss of our roofing. Our white-trimmed house turned pale green by pecan leaves and four large pecan trees in our yard were broken and twisted.

The pecan trees mashed the chain link fence to the ground in four places, in addition pushing to one tree across our gates. Jane was on duty at the hospital during the night of Camille. That is where she lost her new car to water over the dash in the parking lot.

Friends of ours, George and Patti Grunblat, whose house was on a bayou in Cedar Point, spent the night with me.

I recall watching WLOX-TV Channel 13 the night of August 17, when the late Ray Butterfield kept urging those in low areas to seek higher ground as the storm approached.

I was raised in Waveland and was 13 when the 1947 storm struck Hancock County. I remember the hardships after that storm.

Betsy in 1965 caused havoc in New Orleans and left six feet of water in the residence of good friends of ours.

My guests and I filled every container we could find with water, which filled an entire room.

In some containers, water was for drinking and cooking, while others such as ice chests and open buckets were for the toilet. During the time Camille struck, it sounded like a war zone as transformers would explode and light up the sky.

Water appeared to pour in through our solid front door and a spring of water appeared under a bed in one of our bedrooms.

As the winds changed, we kept cracking open windows on the other side of the house. During the night we kept mopping up seeping-in water.

We only lived a few blocks from the old hospital, yet it wasn't until late in the afternoon of August 18 before Jane and I were able to find out if each of us had survived.

George and Patti were in tears when we finally made it to where their home once stood—now a pile of rubble.

The only things the Grunblats saved were a suitcase of clothing, TV set, car and family dog.

Utilities no longer existed

Lights went out during the early part of the storm as the transformers blew and water was not far behind. Natural gas was in the lines at home a little longer than water was available.

News reports from a battery radio during the storm said Waveland was on fire and the coastal area was demolished.

As the eye of the storm passed over Bay St. Louis, everything was still, and we ventured outside with a flashlight. All we could see were trees and limbs in every direction.

A little later the winds picked up again and appeared to have been just as strong as the first part of Camille.

The nightmare of the storm appeared never to end, as we could hear different noises all the time.

The next morning revealed utility poles and wires on the ground and trees still standing without leaves or straw.

The barn behind our house was mashed as it was completely covered with pecan trees and the house in front of it on Dunbar Avenue was completely destroyed.

The row of houses on Hancock Street, now 500 block of deMontulzin appeared to be completely covered by very large pine trees.

My guests and I walked down to Loiacano's Food Store on Main Street, where the plate glasses were all broken. We purchased a few supplies.

Destruction was everywhere—utility poles on the ground, roofing, lumber, glass, parts of houses, doors, windows, smashed autos—on and on the damages went.

Newspaper office damaged

With Camille's expected visit, we at The Sea Coast Echo boarded up every window downstairs in the old Woodman of the World building on Second Street.

Our type setting machines were all covered with plastic, as well as presses, camera and other equipment.

I was the first employee to reach the Echo office after Camille and there was only one sheet of plywood left on one a back window. The rest had been ripped off and all the windows broken in the building.

The metal roofing was all gone and much of it was resting in the backyard and cemetery.

Pieces of slates from the roof of the Hancock County Courthouse was embedded in the building as if driven in with a hammer or maul.

In a few days everything which was not metal began to rust.

The press room ended up with over a foot of water on the floor and great quantities of newspaper as well as equipment were lost.

At the time of Camille, I general manager of the Echo. Ed Hall was publisher and left town for the storm.

The week prior to Camille, our typesetting department had worked many hours of overtime setting the delinquent realty tax rolls for the first issue after the storm.

Needless to say, the tax sale was cancelled for several months and the taxes had to be completely reset.

Chain saws and helicopters

We were virtually cut off from the rest of the world as the bridge across the Bay of St. Louis suffered heavy damages and was impassable for a few days.

Streets were blocked with trees, utility poles and parts of houses, and several sections of Beach Boulevard no longer existed.

We heard the buzz of chain saws for weeks as trees were cut into smaller sizes to be loaded on trucks and hauled away.

There were all types of heavy equipment picking up the debris which included the entire furnishings of many homes flooded by water.

The sky was full of helicopters bringing in supplies and taking out the sick—old and young.

No way to cook

I can remember when Jane finally got home and we built a fire in the yard and cooked some bacon and eggs.

The eggs and bacon tasted good, sure had a heavy smoke smell. A few days after Camille, our friends from New Orleans, who had so many problems from Betsy, came over. Among food items they brought us was a Coleman stove. We used the stove for cooking until the natural gas system was repaired several weeks later.

We had to use a Coleman lantern which was normally used for floundering as light—along with candles—until power was restored several weeks later at home.

Newspaper misses publication

The Sea Coast Echo missed a publication the Thursday after Camille because of damaged equipment and a lack of electricity.

This was only the second time in the Echo's history a publication was missed. The other time was in 1918 when the publisher's only daughter and also the paper's first editor died of a plague.

After Camille, a temporary news office was set up at the Ramada Inn, (now Waveland Resort Inn) and the next publication was printed in Donaldsonville, La.

Mrs. Joe Pilet did the writing for the first issue along with Polly Mazarakis' Polly Peers column and I sold enough advertising in one half day for a 10 page publication.

Ed Hall took a lot of photos and had to drive to Slidell to have them processed for that publication.

Bridge with concrete crossties

The Louisville and Nashville Railroad's bridge across the Bay of St. Louis was made of concrete with concrete crossties a little before Camille.

The late Mr. Zibbie Black, who had been railroad bridge foreman for many years in Bay St. Louis, told me a interesting story about the bridge.

When Brown and Root was constructing the concrete bridge to replace the wooden one, he asked the superintendent why they were using concrete crossties.

The superintendent told him the reason was because they did not want high water to come in and float the tracks away.

When the Brown and Root superintendent returned and saw the damage to the bridge, he told Black the first thing he thought of was their previous conversation.

The forces of Camille picked up the rails with the concrete crossties and placed them all in the water. The tracks on the bridge were reconstructed with wooden crossties and they are still used today.

Last train to town

Pat McGinity was bridge tender on the Bay railroad bridge on the night of Camille.

Around 9 p.m. he received word from a Mobile dispatcher to catch a freight coming east as the storm was heading his way.

McGinity's wife said her husband told the dispatcher the storm wasn't bad yet, but he was advised to catch the train.

The engineer for the train was Scott Kergosien from Mobile and they got off the bridge before the rails began to go as the storm surged.

Mrs. McGinity said the engineer could not get home and remained in Bay St. Louis until Wednesday and returned to Mobile with her and son Pat.

Pat had been home visiting and had to get to Mobile in order to graduate from Springhill College on the Thursday after Camille.

It was a long trip to Mobile as she had to travel through the test site to reach Highway 59 to Hattiesburg and cut over to Mobile.

The engine had to remain in Bay St. Louis much longer than the engineer because of damages to the tracks in both directions.

Neighbors to the west

Tears comes to my eyes when I recall the study flow of traffic from the New Orleans area bringing in supplies.

I watched at Waveland's City Hall as carloads of groceries, ice, milk would be dropped off and the drivers would head back to the city.

These people had remembered their plight only four years before with Hurricane Betsy.

Assistance did not only come from Louisiana, it came from across the nation.

Camille really brought residents closer together as neighbors helped each other in so many ways.

Utility companies flooded the area with workers from across the nation as power and telephone lines had to be completely rebuilt.

First with food wagon

A Seventh Day Adventist disaster vehicle arrived the night of Camille and was parked in front of the Hancock County Courthouse on the morning of August 18.

A hot cup of coffee and sandwich was very welcome by those who weathered the storm.

The Salvation Army, American Red Cross, state and federal agencies all pitched in with lunches for those who remained.

Blossman Gas Company converted the high school's cooking equipment to LP Gas in order for thousands of meals to be prepared.

I remember going to the Gulfport Air National Guard Base and eating one meal when Gov. John Bell Williams came to view the damages of the coastal area.

Bread, milk, ice, batteries, candles, kerosene, gas, clothing, soap and food were precious to everyone.

Facing a .45 and carbine

I will never forget the night I was looking down the barrel of a .45 caliber pistol and a .30 caliber carbine from the ends the bullets come out.

We were under a curfew and troops patrolled the areas pretty heavy at night. In order to move about the area, I was able to secure a pass.

It was about 11 p.m. and I had left my engine running while I walked down the dark alley at Bobby Anne Bakery to deliver their bundle of papers to sell.

As I was returning to my car at the corner of the bakery—there stood a jeep with two Guardsmen, one with a pulled pistol and the other with a rifle pointing at me and they told me to halt.

I started to talk pretty fast, and told them I was delivering newspapers and then went to my car and gave them two copies.

I was almost as frightened as I was on the night of Camille.

People in shock

Many of those who survived Camille remained in shock for many days.

I can remember seeing the late Horace Varin of Blue Meadow Road after Camille walking on Uman Avenue and looking as if he were a ghost.

His clothing was tattered and he looked as if he was going nowhere.

People couldn't believe what had happened during the night of Camille.

Many said it was a blessing the storm came at night, because they were better off not knowing what was really happening.

Prior preparations saved hundreds and probably thousands of people in Hancock County.

Our Civil Defense, law officers, local National Guard and elected officials helped prepare Hancock County for Camille's fury. President Richard Nixon viewed the destruction from Air Force One and brought hope to the residents that they were not forgotten.

Many of those in the military were given leave time to return home and help their families rebuild.

Early reports received by the military across the world were that we had been destroyed, nothing was left to Hancock County.

Our military too, had some very anxious moments.

I could go on and on

I could write for days and days about Camille and the years of restoration in Hancock County.

Hancock County was able to rebuild by residents pulling together with the help of local, state, military and federal officials and agencies.

Houses, cars, trees and such can be replaced in time. All we can have are memories of the 10 who died in Hancock County during Camille.

The reason I set out to write this in my column, and believe me, I could go on and on, is to try and send a message to those who were too young to remember Camille, or were not residents at that time.

Hurricanes are very dangerous.

Smith during his campaign.

"I have never been so moved or so impressed by anything as I have been by what I saw at the coliseum," she said, describing the congressman's flag-draped casket, placed before an altar in a room full of flowers.

"It was just a site to behold. It really was moving just to be there. I still can't believe he's gone and what an impact he made on Congress in such a short time."

Flags flew at half-mast in front of public buildings this week in honor of Smith and the Waveland Board of Aldermen moved their Wednesday night meeting up one hour to allow board members to attend the wake.

BHS schedules orientation

Orientation for the seventh grade at Bay High School has been scheduled for Monday, Aug. 21 at 6 p.m.; for the eighth grade on Tuesday, Aug. 22 at 6 p.m.; and for the ninth grade on Wednesday, Aug. 23 at 6 p.m.

Students and their parents are invited to attend orientation on the dates and times indicated above.

Proceedings will include a welcoming address, guided tour of the school and refreshments. The program should last approximately one hour.

Twenty Years Since Camille

I sat with my loved ones,
My heart terror-filled
On that dreadful night of Hurricane Camille.
We listened intently to the small radio,
Not seeing too much by the candle's glow.
Early the next morning we walked out to view
The destruction as overhead the helicopters flew.
We walked down the street through the stench and the mire,
Through broken down branches and broken down wire.
We walked down the street which was filled with debris.
And then I saw our old oak tree,
Our old oak tree and our very first home.
The house was in shambles, the oak tree was gone.
It was torn from its roots and there lifeless it lay
On the ground were its branches where my children did play.
On that dreadful night when the strong winds blew,
It took twenty-eight lives at the Richelieu.
They did not take warning though the word was spread,
And later they found the twenty-eight dead.
How they must have prayed as the deep waters rose.
God must have heard them though to take them he chose.
Many lives were taken that night of despair.
I believe that they prayed and God answered their prayer
And took them to heaven to be with him there
Where there are no hurricanes, no terror or fear.
Twenty years have passed since that terrible night,
Now let us pray with all our might
That if it be our dear Father's will
There will never be another like Hurricane Camille

The plane crashed in part of the DeSoto National Forest near a small Perry County community called Janice and about nine miles east of US-49.

Perry County authorities said at least three residents reported seeing or hearing a plane go down, with the first report coming in just prior to 10 p.m.

Harrison County Sheriff's Department and other authorities joined the search, which was hampered by darkness and fog. Just before 8 a.m., the plane was spotted by helicopter and a ground search crew found that both occupants were dead.

The plane, which was owned by the non-profit Institute for Marine Mammal Studies in Gulfport, broke up into pieces on impact.

The cause of the crash had not been determined by The Sea Coast Echo's Wednesday night press deadline.

COOKING UP A STORM

By Katie McGuire Caire

As I was mixing up a casserole of my "Giddy Beans" or "Drunken Beans" the other day for a somewhat impromptu supper of barbecued chicken and beans and salad for a few friends, I fell to musing on the many, many times I've cooked up this easy but oh-so-good dish and the many, many occasions it brought to mind.

First as a young newspaper reporter and then wife of another young newspaper reporter years ago, on through the years for occasions from festive to just standing out a day before payday supper, I served up those beans in good times and bad. And I fell to wondering just how many "hills of beans" that would amount to, to paraphrase the old saying!

But I must say that I remember quite well the quite-unforgettable, most-unforgettable pot of beans I ever cooked. That was the casserole I started putting together "that Sunday in August"—August 17, 1980—when one of us will ever forget the killer Hurricane Camille with a hit that night? As I planned to barbecue for the night, to serve along with the beans and a green salad for friends in New Orleans—on the last day for the weekend—but they headed away from the city and several hours later, we fled our bay-side home in Pass Christian, Miss. to stay at friends on higher ground on the other side of town.

Following through my cookbook to answer to a reader request for a recipe, I found at the "And Upa St. Louis" column I had written for our weekly newspaper, the "Fox" not long ago, that I had told us all:

"In going with publisher's New Orleans recipe, when we wanted to make some modifications, we never dreamed of making a term like 'Camille' in the recipe for all—we meant to say that it gets to be a little bit of a really that." Now, Boudin said, the laws have been changed and a person who refuses to evacuate can be arrested and detained in the county jail.

"That building's a lot safer than the homes these people would be staying in," Boudin added, stating that the change in the law was a direct result of Camille.

There are also planned evacuation routes now and more shelters, made possible by construction of buildings such as Waveland Elementary School.

Evacuations for storms which do not hit, or storms which do not turn out to be as dangerous as expected, serve to test the evacuation procedures.

"You're going to run three or four times for every time you get hit," Boudin explained.

"Don't go north," he added. "Go east or west, depending on which way it's coming. If you go north, you have four elements that can kill you—traffic, because there is going to be a lot of people on the road; tornados, lightning and flashfloods."

He also talked about going a safe distance away. For example, heading west, go at least as far as Baton Rouge.

"Under no circumstances should you ever go to New Orleans, which is already under sea level," Boudin added, displaying a chart designed by a computer to show what would happen if a hurricane headed up the Mississippi River.

The National Hurricane Center can now predict where a hurricane will go, but no more than 12 hours in advance.

Kidd said Camille failed to take a northeastern turn as it was expected to do, and instead came right across the Bay St. Louis Bridge, peeling away the railroad bridge and leaving the car bridge in very dangerous condition.

The winds were among the fastest ever recorded and the storm was so concentrated it was only 25 miles wide, inflicting the worst damage in Pass Christian and Gulfport.

Kidd remembers what happened as the storm began. He had gone down to Hancock General Hospital on Dunbar Avenue, where his Plymouth became submerged above its headlights but continued to run.

A wrecker driver he met was trying to get a fire truck out of an impassable area so its crew could assist with a fire on Coleman Avenue, and Kidd persuaded the man to come to the hospital with him.

Along the way, they met several National Guard trucks which had been trying to get to the hospital to evacuate patients.

About three of the trucks had run into the slew at the end of Esplanade and the wrecker was used to get them out.

"I was all over until it started getting bad enough that I couldn't get around," Kidd said. One of his duties had involved the direction of security patrols to prevent looting during the storm.

He headed back to the courthouse, picked up one of his security personnel who had been stationed on the steps of the old Bay St. Louis Post Office on Main Street, and remembers the courthouse windows blowing out and the top coming off during the storm.

Back then, the courthouse served as the center of communications during hurricanes.

Now, that center has moved to the old jail behind the courthouse, bringing together governmental and emergency personnel. The three Civil Defense departments have also been combined.

Communications have improved and better use is made of the county's larger number of volunteer firefighters for evacuation and search and rescue work, Boudin added.

Things have also changed regarding the aftermath of hurricanes. Both cities and those parts of the county with utility systems have generators or other alternate methods of restoring power, and electric companies have a cooperative agreement with similar firms in other areas regarding disaster assistance.

The days when people were without water and electricity for weeks have gone.

Kidd remembers them. He remembers having to go to Gulfport on the Tuesday following the storm to get food and people using artesian wells for water until it could be brought in. He remembers sending word to friends in unaffected areas and receiving truckloads of ice, water and other supplies.

Getting the roads clear was his simplest task. He had an agreement with local pulpwood cutters, whom he had told to "just go ahead and start cutting up the trees in the roads" without waiting to hear from them.

Getting assistance on both a county-wide and individual basis is different these days. Boudin said the assistance procedures have been refined and many rules are more strict, such as those requiring flood insurance after the first application for assistance and prohibiting repeated applications.

Kidd remembers having some problems, like not being able to get the state to declare martial law in the disaster area.

"I just declared it myself," he said, explaining that something had to be done to prevent the stealing of building materials and other goods. "It was real simple. You could bring anything you wanted to bring in, but you couldn't take anything out."

Boudin said, too, that the previous two hurricanes had been mild and that people were less responsive to warnings about Camille. With the memory of Aug. 17, 1969, still in the minds of all but the youngest adults, that has changed.

"In all my planning, I try to use Camille as a gauge. If you're ready to handle that, you can handle any little nuisance storms we get," the Civil Defense director stated.

And Kidd, who was ready for a bad storm when he saw debris already washing onto the beach but could not believe his eyes when he saw how the vacuum created by the storm's pressure changes had deflated the tires and exploded the windows of cars parked at Bay Junior High, believes Camille trained him well for any future storm.

Although he retired from Civil Defense when he was elected a city commissioner in 1970, he would probably be manning a feeding station or working in a shelter if another major hurricane hit Hancock County.

"I'm the type of person, if something like that came up again, I'd be out in it, because I just love people," he said.

Cochran's office to visit courthouse

Senator Thad Cochran is dispatching his mobile office staff to five Gulf Coast area counties on Aug. 22 and 23, including stops in Hancock, Harrison, Jackson, George and Stone counties.

Tuesday, Aug. 22
Hancock County Courthouse, Bay St. Louis, 11 a.m.
Harrison County Courthouse, Gulfport, 2 p.m.

Harrison Courthouse, Biloxi, 4 p.m.

Wednesday, Aug. 23
Jackson-George Regional Library, Pascagoula 9 a.m.

George County Courthouse, Lucedale, 11 a.m.

Stone County Courthouse,

Wiggins, 1:30 p.m.

Citizens who may wish to discuss a problem involving a federal agency or an issue before the 101st Congress are invited to stop by and confer with the senator's staff. The mobile office will be at each stop for approximately one hour.

The visits by Cochran's mobile office are part of the constituent service program he initiated to help provide direct contact between his office and citizens and officials at the local level in Mississippi's 82 counties.

Two arrested in California for 1985 Bay murder

BY D.C. HARVILL

The Christmas 1985 murder of a Bay St. Louis man finally may be solved, with the arrest of two of his relatives in California Monday.

Fran Lombardo and her daughter, Mary Elizabeth Lombardo, were arrested in Santa Ana, Calif., and charged with the murder of Frank Lombardo Jr., according to Bay Detective Shane Corr.

Fran Lombardo was Frank Lombardo's wife, Mary Elizabeth, his daughter.

Firefighters found Lombardo's body in his 114 McDonald Lane home after extinguishing a 6:30 p.m. fire that had gutted the structure.

Dr. Thomas Bennett, then state medical examiner, ruled the death homicide after determining that Lombardo had been shot twice, once in the head and once in the chest.

Bennett estimated that Lombardo had died shortly after midnight on the 25th, 16 hours prior to the fire.

Bay Police Chief Ray Murphy and Mississippi Highway Patrol Investigator B.R. Sibley flew to California Sunday to make the arrests with the assistance of Orange County Sheriff's officers, Corr said.

The two suspects have waived extradition and are being held in the Orange County Jail until they can be returned to Mississippi.

To protect the safety of the two officers and the subjects, the time of the return is not being released, Corr said.

Compulsory school attendance required

All children between ages six and 17 will be required to attend school. Hancock County School Attendance Officers Yvonne Landry and Frank McNeil will be closely monitoring attendance and would like the community to get behind them in order to help our children stay in school.

In accordance with the law, all children who are attending private schools, or are in a legitimate home instruction program, must fill out a certificate of enrollment on all compulsory age students.

This certificate must be completed and returned to the attendance officers at the Hancock County Youth Court no later than Sept. 15 of the current school year.

Children who are in a legitimate home instruction program must provide, in addition to the certificate of enrollment, a description of the type of education the child will be receiving.

School attendance officers are located at the Hancock County Youth Court located in Bay St. Louis and can be reached at 467-7945 or 467-0206.

SPORTS

THE SEA COAST ECHO—THURSDAY, AUGUST 17, 1989-1B

SECTION B

Time Out

By Dena Bisnette

Sometimes it's a little hard to determine where sports ends and recreation begins.

I have my own definition. If it involves competition, either team or individual, and it includes a reasonable amount of physical activity, then it's a sport. It doesn't matter whether the person is competing against someone else or against a time clock.

If it involves little or no physical effort and it lacks that competitive quality, then it's recreation.

I, for one, firmly believe that new sports evolve from recreational activities that include the physical element. Race-walking or bicycle racing are a couple of good examples of this type of evolution.

This week, we have an announcement about one of those sports—skateboarding. It seems quite popular with the kids in the area around The Sea Coast Echo office, because I see youngsters walking by with their boards or practicing in empty parking lots on weekends.

I'm not sure how you measure the skill level on skateboards, but the competition ought to be interesting. Last time I hopped onto one of those things, I had a devil of a time staying on!

Waveland Little League will stage its awards ceremony Monday at 6:30 p.m. at the American Legion Post 77 home off Coleman Avenue.

Bernard Tusa, little league spokesman, said all players, coaches and parents are invited to attend.

A Skate Contest has been scheduled for Saturday, Aug. 26, in the Walmart parking lot. Practice begins at 2 p.m. with competition, which will include skateboards and freestyle bikes, beginning at 3:30.

The event is being sponsored by the Hancock County Recreation Association and admission is $5.

For more information, contact Reggie at 466-2748 or 467-0887.

The Gulf Coast Open Golf Championships are set for Aug. 25-27, with the first round to be played at Diamondhead.

The second and third rounds will be played at Pine Island and Hickory Hill, respectively.

The 54-hole, stroke play tournament, to be played individually, is limited to Hancock, Harrison and Jackson County residents who must have a handicap of seven or better to be eligible. About 70 players will be accepted.

Applications can be picked up locally at the Diamondhead Country Club golf shop or information can be obtained from Billy Applewhite at 863-7808.

We have a good many Pearl River Community College alumni in this area and have heard that the school is looking for former players and friends of Dobie Holden, who was the football coach there from 1948 to 1966.

Pearl River is trying to set up a ceremony to honor Holden and raise funds for a scholarship in his name. The date selected for the event is Sept. 30.

For more information, call 795-6801.

This weekend, the Cycles Plus Bicycle Club will travel to Red Bluff near Columbia for a Sunday ride.

For departure time, call the bicycle shop at 467-1706.

Don't forget the hunter education class next week at the Bay St. Louis-Hancock County Library. The class will be from 6 p.m. to 9 p.m. Monday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday.

To register, call Antoine Boyd at 467-5108 after 5 p.m.

We have several young people from the area who have successfully combined scholarship and athletic ability and therefore deserve special mention.

They include Bart Brooks of Bay St. Louis, recently awarded a soccer scholarship to Belhaven; Candice Pavolini of Pass Christian, who has signed both basketball and softball scholarships, also at Belhaven; and Micah Necaise of Bay St. Louis, one of the top 12 finishers in the scholarship athlete contest sponsored by the Mississippi Department of Wildlife, Fisheries and Parks, American Airlines and the Jackson Touchdown Club.

We wish them continued success.

Winner in the Tennis World doubles tournaments at Diamondhead this week was Ruth Pennington of Diamondhead.

Pro Lis Lagarde said Pennington won both the Friday and Sunday competitions. Coming in second on Friday was Don Wiltz of Waveland, with Herman Shacklett of Diamondhead in second place Sunday.

The Colortyme Career Girls softball team will sponsor a fundraising disco tonight, beginning at 8:30 p.m., at the Lyon's Den on Central Avenue.

The proceeds from the event will be used to help defray the costs of a trip to the regional finals in Shreveport. Good luck at the tournament, ladies.

The Mississippi Under-15½ Olympic development team participated in the Atlanta International Cup July 1 through 4.

The first game was with the Aviators of Vandalia, Ohio. Mississippi won 1-0.

Second was a 2-0 victory over a team from the South Metro club in Fayette, Ga. The third game as a 1-3 loss to the Royals from the DDY/Rockdale program in Tucker, Ga. This was enough to qualify Mississippi for the quarter finals.

In the quarter finals, Mississippi played a Datagraphics team from Roswell, Ga. This was a 2-0 victory.

The semi-finals paired Mississippi with the DDY/Rockdale Royals. The Royals won again, this time 3-0.

Mississippi's final game was for third place in the tournament. This match was with the North Carolina State champion Park Sharon Tornado from Charlotte, N.C. Mississippi won the match 2-0.

This was the final activity for the Under-15½ team for the 1988/1989 season. The wins over the Datagraphics team and the North Carolina State champions were highlights of the tournament. In addition to defeating these two highly rated teams, the Mississippi team shut out all of their opponents except the Royals.

Ralph Lundy, State coach for the South Carolina Olympic development team and Region II staff coach, presented the third place trophies. He complimented the Mississippi team and told them how impressed he was with their play in the Atlanta cup.

Tryouts for the under 16½ Mississippi team will be held Oct. 8 in Jackson.

Labat captures GRC tennis title

Top-seeded Myron Labat Jr. of Bay St. Louis captured the winner's trophy in the Boys' 14-and-under Division of the Gulfport Racquet Club Junior Championships Tennis Tournament July 9-12.

Labat used superior strategy and a series of heavy groundstrokes and delicately angled drop shots to dispose of all four of his singles opponents without the loss of a set en route to the championship title.

He has had similar success throughout 1989, winning a total of five junior tennis titles and improving his Mississippi Tennis Association ranking from number 17 in 1988 to a possible "top five" position in the state for 1989.

Labat has also taken over the top position on the DuPont Tennis Challenge ladder with a three-set, four-and-a-half-hour victory over previously top-ranked Tom Tuttle.

In the Gulfport tournament finals, Labat took the first set from Vicksburg's Paul Layocano by a score of 6-0. In the second set, however, Labat trailed by a score of 2-5 before rallying to win the match and the championship by a 6-0, 7-5 score.

Other Bay St. Louis players also competed in the tournament. Kristi Heitzmann has also had a productive 1989 in tennis, competing with and upsetting some of the state's top female junior players throughout this year.

Heitzmann, seeded second in the Girls' 16-and-under Division, scored a first-round victory over Michelle White of Gulfport 6-2, 6-1.

In the second round, Heitzmann was upset by unseeded and eventual champion Katherine Adcock by a score of 3-6, 6-4, 2-6. Heitzmann then defeated Alexa Zepko of Gulfport by a score of 6-0, 6-1 for a third place finish in the division.

In the Girls' 12-and-under Division, Lindy Heitzmann and Marion Labat, both of Bay St. Louis, put their skills to the test in the round-robin format.

Marion split sets in two of her four matches, holding two match points against Kimberly Blakeslee of Gulfport but lost the match in a third set tie-breaker.

Lindy Heitzmann scored victories over Blakeslee (6-1, 6-1), Marion Labat (6-1, 6-3) and Katherine Morrison of Hattiesburg (6-2, 6-2).

Heitzmann's only loss came at the hands of M'Lee Welch, the eventual champion of the division by a score of 6-1, 6-4.

The players now will turn their attention to competition in the Diamondhead junior tournament which is scheduled for Sept. 23 and 24.

Try these tips for taking big summer bass

Isolated cover. Shallow water very near a sharp drop into deeper depths. A big lure presented very slowly and deliberately.

These are the key ingredients to catching big bass on practically any lake anywhere, according to top tournament angler and Evinrude Outboards Pro Staff member Larry Nixon.

"There are practically always two distinct patterns for small 'limit' bass and for larger, heavier bass," Nixon explains.

"Normally, in tournaments we go after the smaller fish first because they're easier to catch, but then we try for the quality fish that really add weight to a stringer, and it will normally be a different technique entirely," he says.

"Another important part of catching big bass is using big lures," Nixon continues. "My favorite is a jig adorned with a large pork chunk, which I fish year-round. I also like large plastic worms, a tandem willow leaf spinnerbait, and for early morning and late afternoon fishing, a topwater plug or a buzz bait."

"I firmly believe you need big lures when you specifically want to catch big bass. Small lures will catch big fish, too, but not as consistently."

Fishing these lures slowly is critical, adds Nixon, whose largest tournament bass weighed nine pounds, four ounces. Big bass seem to be more cautious than smaller fish, so it's important to slow the lure and let the fish have a chance to study it.

"Sometimes I'll let a plastic worm sit motionless on the bottom 10 or 15 seconds," he says, "then just barely crawl it back. You may have to make repeated casts to the same spot, too, before you finally get a bite."

"One thing to keep in mind while you're fishing," concludes Nixon, "is to always be looking for possible hideouts for a big bass. Work the shoreline cover the way you always do, but never pass up the chance to cast to a single log or stump out by itself."

The first thing to realize, Nixon points out, is that big bass patterns are generally one-bass patterns. It is extremely rare to locate a school of big bass in one spot. This means going from place to place looking for similar conditions. On the hand, you may catch several big fish out of the same spot over a period of two or three days.

"I believe the big bass push the smaller bass away when they find the perfect cover," Nixon says. "Then, when you remove that big fish, another big one moves in."

"Normally, larger bass seem to hold around isolated underwater cover rather than visible cover. This may be a retreat from fishing pressure, because the visible cover above water, such as sticks and logs, gets fished by more anglers."

"The key ingredient I've always found," adds the Evinrude pro, "is that the cover is very, very close to deep water. I believe big bass may use this depth as a form of cover, and simply move deeper when they feel threatened."

During the hot summer and into early autumn, Nixon recommends anglers try to locate areas where creek or river channels run close to shorelines when searching for big bass. The shallow water along the shore should have heavy cover, such as vegetation, stumps or fallen timber.

If you've used your boat a lot this summer, now would be a good time to apply a thin but complete coating of OMC Triple-Guard® grease on the steering cable ram of your engine. The grease will help the steering work smoothly and easily and keep it from seizing during storage.

Five attend football camp

Five Bay St. Louis area youths participated in a football camp at the University of Southern Mississippi July 16-20.

The camp, designed for boys age 10 through entering seniors in high school, featured individual instruction and team play.

Curley Hallman, head football coach at USM, directed the camp.

Local participants included Jacques Gillan, Steve Miller and Jonathan Fletcher, all of Bay St. Louis, and Kevin Cuevas and Matt Harmon, both of Kiln.

Moran attends basketball camp

Haleigh Moran of Kiln was among some 70 high school girls from across the nation invited to attend a Blue Star Basketball Camp at the University of Southern Mississippi July 23-26.

The camp, one of six such camps held nationwide, featured league play and the opportunity for college coaches to observe the players for possible recruiting.

Fishing rodeo geared to disabled people

On Oct. 14, Gulfport's Joseph T. Jones Park will be the site of 'A Very Special Fishing Rodeo' open to people with disabilities of all ages.

Sponsored by the City of Gulfport in cooperation with many other local and community organizations, including the Governor's Office of Handicapped Services, this fourth annual event will feature competition in categories ranging from smallest to largest fish with even a prize for the most unusual catch.

Last year, more than 160 people with disabilities took part in the day-long activities. This year, the festivities are set to begin at 8 a.m. with approximately three hours allotted to actual fishing.

At the close of competition, the announcement of the various winners is planned to coincide with lunch, followed by a one-hour excursion to nearby Marine Life. The day is scheduled to end at 2 p.m.

Although all people with disabilities are invited to participate, 'A Very Special Fishing Rodeo' focuses most particularly on the developmentally disabled. Volunteers from both the Seabee Base and from Keesler Air Force Base will provide one-on-one supervision to all the contestants.

Wheelchair access will be provided for all the entrants who require it, and plenty of accessible parking will be available. Admission is free to all the participants, and registration will be handled by the Gulfport Kiwanis Club.

Under the leadership of Gulfport Mayor Ken Combs, 'A Very Special Fishing Rodeo' is just one of the highlights of the city's celebration of October as National Disability Employment Awareness Month.

For more information, write to 'A Very Special Fishing Rodeo' in care of the Mayor's Office, City of Gulfport, P.O. Box 1780, Gulfport, 39502, or call 868-5882. Those living outside the Gulfport area, call the Governor's Office of Handicapped Services toll-free at 1-800-622-6052.

SWIMMING HONORS—From left, Heather Wopat, Diane Wopat and Jessica Wopat, all of Waveland, display the honors the two girls took during the recent Mississippi Gulf Coast Swim League Meet in Biloxi. Heather, who has been swimming three years, took the high point honors for the six-and-under division; third place, medley relay, fifth place, freestyle relay; and four individual firsts in freestyle, fly, breast and back stroke. Jessica, who has been swimming six years, competed in the 11-12 division, taking fourth place, individual butterfly; fourth place, back stroke; fourth place, freestyle; and two first medals on relays. Their mother Diane served as a timekeeper for the meet. The girls are members of the Long Beach YMCA Barracudas. (Echo staff photo by Dena Bisnette)

Cox, Purvis continue on Eagle radio team

Football fans throughout Mississippi and parts of Florida, Alabama and Louisiana will be able to follow University of Southern Mississippi football during the 1989 season on the Golden Eagle football radio network.

As many as 29 stations will carry the broadcasts of Golden Eagle football this fall.

Veteran sportscaster John Cox and former USM quarterback Vic Purvis will be behind the microphone again in 1989 with exciting coverage of every game.

Cox is beginning his 12th season involved with sports broadcasting at USM and has twice been honored as Mississippi's Sportscaster of the Year (1986 and 1988). He has also been a finalist for the award on two other occasions.

Purvis enters his 14th year as expert commentator for Golden Eagle football. During a brilliant career at USM, he set records that still stand, and the three-year letterman was inducted into the USM Sports Hall of Fame in 1972.

His accomplishments and abilities at USM helped him become a high draft pick of the then-Boston Patriots of the old

AFL, but his career was cut short by injury.

Among the stations currently scheduled to carry USM football in 1989 are WMTX/AM, Biloxi and WRPM/AM, Poplarville.

HAPPENINGS TO BETTER INFORM OUR READERS

By Joe Pilet

Hancock County Storm Victims

Food, water and shelter, long recognized as prime requirements for man's survival, were abruptly taken from Hancock County residents when killer Hurricane "Camille" bowed in and brought a death, demolition and devastation to a large, but yet unpopulated area. Within hours following the disaster, vital supplies were pouring into the area from the four corners of our vast United States. A search and rescue squad from Harrisburg, Pennsylvania contributed skill and ability in searching outlying areas and bringing stranded and injured victims to the American Red Cross Stations for treatment. Salvage Army shelters gave food, clothing, bedding and comfort. Where fires broke out New Orleans and Natchez Fire Departments fought valiantly to bring blazes under control. Adams County Civil Defense joined forces with the Natchez Sheriff's Department and the New Orleans Civil Defense in doing a superb job of not being overlooked were the magnificent services rendered by the Georgia Power Company, the Mississippi Power and Light Company, the South Central Bell Telephone Company, the E. J. Water Well Service, and contractor H. L. Hansley of Natchez, Miss. Very real and able service were the stalwart men, some strong, some from the Miss. National Guard who were well in the command of the tedious task of safe-guarding from looting the properties of helpless victims. Peace of mind was brought to countless people as the Tri-County C. B. Fraternity, Inc. and the old Natchez Amateur Radio Club sent out messages of assurance to anxious relatives and friends. Mississippi Highway Patrolmen are due praise in the highest for they spared no effort in amazing accomplishments. Not to be overlooked were the services of the Seven-Day Adventists of Louisiana, the Gulf State Marine Fisheries Commission of New Orleans and countless un-named individuals and firms who arrived with fresh water, food, medical supplies, milk -- and yes, even food for stranded animals!

Avert Panic
While telephone and power lines were snarled across the roads, streets and highways men worked with deliberate speed in opening passage ways -- their trucks displaying the sign "AVERT PANIC" Good Advice. The people responded with calm. There was acceptance of the situation and words of praise and appreciation for all who rendered aid and assistance.

Motels Go All Out
With crippled facilities the motels spared destruction waved aside their own losses to provide hospitality and comfort. Bill Hamzy, Manager of the Ramada Inn, together with Lou Bou-dreau and his good wife, Jo, worked round-the-clock in setting up free food, free lodging, a first aid station, an injection center for typhoid, tetanus, etc. Hundreds of people lined up for vaccinations thus saving off a threatened epidemic. Volunteer workers cooked, cleaned, and performed even given multitudes of candles to compensate for injector discomforts! Fire wardens, help came in way of water supplies, donated foods, etc. The Ramada Inn Disaster Headquarters, provided meeting places for city fathers and steering committees who worked at the arduous task of guiding the destiny of a stunned and crippled community. The Driftwood Inn valiantly housed power line workers from Georgia, Louisiana and Mississippi. They warmly accepted families, dogs, cats, and salvaged materials heartedly allowed use of their swimming pools as a public bath facility.

Friends Beat a Path
Zip-zagging across the county, coming to a screaming halt at washed out bridges and uncleared roads, came friends from Alabama and elsewhere laden with food, water, transistor radios, coffee makers, camp equipment and canned foods. All contributed the moral building boost needed to give Camille Crushed the will to survive -- they brought HOPE.

Supplies Still Needed
Despite the caravans of comfort and generous contributions many needed supplies are dwindling or non-existent. Among the things most needed are brooms, mops, rakes, shovels, and silt-garbage pails, household cleaners and scouring pads, and silt-garbage pails, heavy cord for clothes lines, large plastic garbage bags, slack line, insect repellents, work pants, women's blue jeans, tennis shoes, work boots, disinfectants like lysol and pine oil, ready-to-eat canned foods, pencils and notepaper, and foot powder and corn plaster.

Dangerous Water Contamination
Septic tanks are reportedly boiling up in the vicinity of Waveland, Clermont Harbor, Ansley, etc., and while in many places there has been a restoration of water supplies people are warned that this water is polluted and not to be used for drinking purposes. Throughout the entire area people are urged not to drink or cook with water until it has passed the health inspection.

Profiteers -- Prolific
Some instances have been reported of stores hiking the prices on necessary items despite the order to hold the price to those prices of the Saturday prior to Camille. In one instance a 25¢ loaf bread was purchased at 75¢ a loaf. Reports are that a 25¢ loaf bread was sold at three times the normal price. Persons who were victimized are asked to report the price. Persons who were victimized are asked to report the price of the store and details to city authorities for the sure and swift day of reckoning.

Help Yourself a Bit
Volunteers spent long and weary hours in an effort to see that no one goes hungry or thirsty or without medical attention when necessary. Victims can help by putting trash and waste materials in receptacles, lining up in orderly fashion, not lingering after having been served, using care in parking automobiles properly, keeping pets away from public places; showing courtesy and politeness to all people; keep voices well modulated and transistor radios turned low.

Snakes, Jagged Glass, Dead Animals, Stench
"Some children under 14 years of age were evacuated to protect them from danger of hungry, roaming animals who have become vicious through fright and hunger, as well as danger of snake bite since a reported number of poison snakes have been crawling toward higher places. Also there is a very real danger from jagged glass, nails, cuts from tin, and accidents from falling food swept into the mud during the storm are causing health hazards. Efforts are being made to air-lift large animals from the vicinity," said Mrs. C. O. Swearingen of Hancock General Hospital.

Hard Road Home

Memories of Camille

The destructive hurricane left no resident unaffected

Hurricane Camille hit the Mississippi Gulf Coast on Aug. 17, 1969, forever changing the coastline and the lives of many Hancock County residents.

In recognition of the 20th anniversary of the worst hurricane ever recorded here, The Sea Coast Echo staff has collected the memories of some of the people who lived through the storm and rebuilt their lives after the destruction.

Trapped in attic with six children

The David Treutel family spent the night of August 17, 1969 in the attic of their St. Charles Street home.

The Treutels, their six children—who ranged from ages one to 11—and Treutel's parents retreated to the attic after witnessing their floating automobile circling the home, according to Pennie Treutel.

A cord of wood that had just been delivered floated through the doors pushed open by rising water. The house, which was elevated a few feet off the ground, was flooded with approximately four feet of water.

Not knowing if the water would reach their safe retreat, Treutel forced a hole in the attic with his shoulder in case the family needed to escape.

He also waded through chest-deep water to retrieve the family boat in case it was needed to keep the family afloat.

"The children were not really scared, but very excited, except for Missy, who was seven at the time. We did a lot of praying," said Mrs. Treutel.

"My worst memory (of the attic) was the unfinished floor with all the fiberglass," she said.

St. Stanislaus was shelter to 200

When the present St. Stanislaus High School was constructed in the early '70s, measures were taken so the buildings would survive 250 m.p.h. winds and 30-foot tides, according to Brother Aquin Gauthier.

Lessons learned during Hurricane Camille were used to avoid heavy damage from future storms. Twenty feet of water washed over the campus, knocking down a 1,100-foot long pier which stood 25 feet high.

Not one injury was sustained among the 200 persons who sought refuge in the boarding school's residence halls. The evacuees were forced into hallways after with windows began breaking from airborne debris, including flying slates off the old buildings.

Brother Philip and Brother Alban were attempting to se-ure the dining room when the force of the rapidly rising tide pinned Brother Philip behind a huge steel door. Luckily, the moving water's ebb allowed him to escape.

Brother Aquin reported several families stayed for weeks following the storm, having returned to their homes to find them uninhabitable.

Fire and water greets store owner

Louise Lynch came back to Waveland after Hurricane Camille to find five feet of water had been in the front of her Coleman Avenue drugstore, while the back of the building had narrowly escaped destruction by fire.

Lynch and her family had gone to Bay St. Louis to stay with a cousin and returned to find her store "completely gutted" by water, with fire damage to the apartment in back.

No one is sure what caused the fire that destroyed several Coleman Avenue businesses, but she speculates that the gas lines in a washeteria nearby may have exploded.

She remembers the places which were destroyed, including Mollere Realty, a clinic operated by Dr. J.B. Levens, Brewster's Jewelry and the washeteria.

"The winds were fanning the fire in toward my building, but when the eye passed over, the firemen were able to save it," Lynch recalled.

Waveland City Hall on the other side of her building, and what remained past it up to Central Avenue, had not been touched by the fire.

Lynch said all her fixtures and stock were gone and she had to replace her glass in the storefront, but she fared much better than some of the other business owners did.

"There was nothing standing between Coleman Avenue and the beach," she said. The storm had destroyed everything up to the point where the fire's destruction began.

New home hit; old one intact

The Baxter home on Highland Drive in Bay St. Louis was to undergo its final inspection August 18, 1969.

J. C. Baxter, his wife, Pinke, and children, Laurie and Brian, were still living in their de Montluzin Street home when warning of a severe hurricane was issued. Thinking the new home would be stronger and safer from rising water, Baxter took a radio and a few items to ride out the storm at the newly constructed residence.

When Laurie looked out a window, she saw the new carport flying by—soon to be followed by the roof—as a tornado took its toll.

The couple spent the remain-

Breland said she was under the impression that the downstairs would be destroyed, but the upstairs had probably survived. Her husband, however, turned out to be right.

ing hours until the eye of the hurricane had passed crouched in a hall, covered by a door that had yet to be hung.

During the quiet of the hurricane's eye, the family was beckoned across the street to a neighbor, the Rev. Dwyne Mounger's residence, where they spent the rest of the night.

As fate would have it, the older, more fragile de Montluzin Street home did not suffer a scratch, according to Pinke Baxter.

Moving everything upstairs was not enough

Hazel Breland of Waveland calls Hurricane Camille "a dreadful time."

At first, she was not particularly concerned about the approaching storm, but on Saturday night, while she and her husband were attending a dance, he kept going out to check the weather.

Her husband was the late Ted Breland and he was a contractor. He had built a camp at the end of Fiber Street and early on Sunday morning, he gathered up as many family members as he could and moved everything at the camp upstairs.

"The next morning, when it was all over, we left the car up on Blue Meadow and walked from there on out to the end of

"When we got there, there was nothing but the slab."

Her husband had a tractor and used it to clear the way from Blue Meadow to the end of Fiber Street, because most people there couldn't even get to their property.

She remembers, too, "bobbing around in the mud" to see what was left.

Her husband recovered many of the same boards he had used the first time he built the camp and used them in rebuilding.

Breland remembers finding smaller items, all of them covered with mud.

"I had an old-fashioned wash-bowl and pitcher and I found the pitcher in the mud. It wasn't broken, but it looked like there was one long, thin crack right through the middle of it, so I just set it back down in the mud," she said.

When someone else recovered the pitcher later, it was not cracked; the mark had been mud.

Wind's roar is vivid memory

"The thing I really remember about Camille was the horrible roar of the wind," Roy Baxter of Pearlinton recalls.

He, like many others from Hancock County rode the storm out at the Mississippi Test Facility, today known as the John C. Stennis Space Center.

"I just wondered if anything could be left to the area because of the severe wind," Baxter said.

Baxter reported the storm did cause a lot of damage in Pearlinton, but could have caused more if the area would have had the high water surges like Bay St. Louis and Waveland.

Baxter stated, "We were west of the eye of the storm, so Pearlinton did not have the water like other parts of the county. As a matter of fact, we had more water in the 1947 hurricane."

Baxter said he got by lightly—especially when compared to his sister Virginia and late brother-in-law Ed Larroux, who resided in the Cedar Point area of Bay St. Louis.

Virginia spent the night with neighbors while her husband ended up in the rafters of their home as waters rose and did heavy damages to their home.

The Larroux's had to rebuild and raise their house.

Compretta's new job began Aug. 17

Bobby Compretta assumed the manager's position of the Bay St. Louis Winn-Dixie store on US-90 August 17, 1969.

"I can always remember how many years it has been since Camille—it is the same as the anniversary of my promotion," said Compretta.

The store sustained only minor damage, but was without electricity for a week to 10 days following the storm.

"We were back in business two days after the storm with one generator operating. We would take orders from customers at the door and walk back to get their items. All perishables were given away," he said.

A trailorload of water, ice and bread was brought in from New Orleans and given away the day after the storm.

Storm took clothes off their backs

Jim Pfeiffer's Shoreline Park home was washed into a corner of the nearby bayou and he rescued it after Camille, jacked it up and made it the second story of his present house.

He saved his house, but he couldn't save his clothing.

He and his family had stayed with friends in Bay St. Louis during the hurricane and when they returned home, they not only found the house washed off its foundation but found all their belongings covered in thick mud.

"We very laboriously dug them out and washed them in a boat that we were dipping the water out of the bayou with," Pfeiffer said.

"Then within a week, they literally started falling off our backs. Something had caused the threads to rot and the clothes fell apart."

"I had gone back to work and one day my shirt sleeve just slid down my arm."

Davis remembers kind neighbors

"We spent the night with my parents on Ballentine Street in the Bay and never once believed we would have so much water in our house on Blue Meadow Road," Mrs. Roger Davis said.

"The thing that really sticks in my mind is that a helicopter landed at the Winn-Dixie Shopping Center and it contained the bodies of victims of the storm," Mrs. Davis recalls.

"Another thing which I will never forget is how the people were helpful to each other," Mrs. Davis said.

Mrs. Davis was the mother of young children as Camille struck, and said there was a big concern about getting milk for the children.

Waveland man was certain he would die

Professor Marcel LaNasa spent Hurricane Camille trapped in an attic with a neighbor.

LaNasa convinced the other man to stay with him in the attic of his Vacation Lane residence because the neighbor was from a northern state and knew nothing about hurricanes.

"I saved my neighbor, but we lost the little dog he had," LaNasa remembered. The man had left the animal in his house and the dog, unable to get out, had drowned. LaNasa is convinced his neighbor would have died the same way.

Looking back, he realized that he was not really prepared.

"We should have brought some tools with us to knock out the vents. You know how an attic is, all closed up and stuffy. We could hardly breathe."

"It was a gruesome experience," he added. "I don't even like to talk about it now."

The men could hear the bricks from St. Clare's Church across the street as they pounded on the house, so they moved to the other side of the attic. Then, they feared that the pine trees would fall and damage the roof.

They also realized that no one could come to their rescue while the storm was still going on.

"We made our peace with God, because we knew it would be our last night on earth," LaNasa said.

"Everything was rushing by the vent in the attic. I could see the church pews rushing by. Water was up to the ceiling. I could put my arm out the vent and feel it touching my hand," he added.

He remembers another neighbor, this one with a wife and five children, whose house got washed off its foundation.

Fortunately, the house wedged in LaNasa's front yard where a telephone pole now stands, and was not destroyed.

The two men in the attic could not communicate with the man in the other house, although they could see him.

"He was screaming but the wind was so high, we couldn't hear him, except for a scream here and there. We couldn't decipher what he was trying to say."

The aftermath also hit LaNasa hard. When the two men came down from the attic, LaNasa saw total destruction.

A music professor, LaNasa had an extensive library of sheet music, including some out-of-print rarities given to him by his mother, many records and a collection of instruments. Everything, including a brand-new piano, was destroyed.

"I felt like committing suicide. To accumulate and lose all this and then start life all over again from nothing...It just seemed too hard," LaNasa said. "But, I started all over with it."

Hurricanes were new to her

Pat Mowry had moved to Pass Christian from South Carolina only a few months before Hurricane Camille. She knew very little about such storms and stayed in her house on Second Street.

"I didn't have any water or any damage in that house, but my neighbors just down the street were flooded."

She remembers sitting in the dark and hearing a knock at the door. Opening it, Mowry let in two couples, also Second Street residents, who had six feet of water in their houses. She was glad to have some company.

"I sat there terrified all night long. It was so dark," Mowry said. "I think it would have probably been even more frightening if it hadn't been dark; if I could have seen all the water and everything blowing around."

Mowry now lives in one of the historic homes on Scenic Drive, just a few doors down from the Pass Christian V.F.W. The house has metal kickplates on the doors and she believes they were a result of the storm.

She talked to the couple from whom she bought the house, which is known as Win-Rush, and they said they spent the storm in what is now her bedroom closet.

The woman told her the big double doors facing the Gulf had been blown inward, but became upset as she remembered the storm so Mowry did not ask her to continue her story.

Former Echo owner remembers storm

"I went downstairs to find water ankle deep. Just as I opened the swinging doors from the kitchen to the dining room, I saw a large wave crash the front of our house in," Mrs. Powell Glass of Lynchburg, VA recalls.

Mrs. Glass and her late husband were residents of Beach Boulevard, Bay St. Louis, and had been former owners of The Sea Coast Echo.

Mrs. Glass continued, "I recall seeing Mr. Glass' grandmother's silver chest floating in the waves in the kitchen as I high tailed it up the stairs."

The couple weathered the storm in the upstairs section of their home which was raised by the former owner, Dr. Momus, after the 1947 hurricane.

"We were in the room we referred to as the 'dormitory' with Powell's stamp collection and two dogs," Mrs. Glass said.

"I remember Rev. Charles Johnson looking so terribly dejected the morning after the storm. It was because of the night in the hurricane as he and his family resided only three doors down the beach from us," Mrs. Glass stated.

Rev. Johnson reportedly supplied a ladder which enabled them to come down from their gutted house.

Mrs. Glass said, "I saved my car by parking it behind the old Echo office on Second Street."

"We decided to head to Virginia. As we were leaving town, we stopped at Fahey's Drug Store, and the New Orleans States Item was being delivered. It carried a story about Camille causing severe damage in Virginia," Mrs. Glass remembered.

The family never did see the silver set again and later moved to Lynchburg.

Tornado destroyed historic drugstore

Emily de Montluzin, who is still a resident of the street which bears her family name, remembers a major impact on her family when their drugstore was destroyed.

The store, called L.A. de Montluzin Son, using the literal translation of the French custom of leaving "and" out of "and son", had been built in 1878.

It was the Gulf Coast's first drugstore and only the fifth in Mississippi and was an elaborate building on the beach, with part of the store extending out over the water.

"It was beautiful, quaint old place. The Victorian inside was so well-preserved," de Montluzin said.

The furnishings and fixtures were also elaborate, including such fancy items as five-foot-tall apothecary jars with crystal and gold stoppers.

The site is now occupied by the only residence on the beach in the main street area.

The worst part was that the building may have survived the hurricane itself.

"It just killed us to lose it, and what caused the loss was one of about 90 small tornadoes that spun off the hurricane," said de Montluzin, adding that diBenedetto's Grocery next door fell victim to the same twister.

"People use to drive through and take pictures of the store, then they'd come in and ask if they could take more pictures. It was a very well known store."

De Montluzin's daughter Lorraine brought home a few apothecary jars the night before the storm, and a few others were found when clean-up efforts unearthed a barrel that had been placed under the store by its founder, Rene de Montluzin Sr.

The only other thing left was one of the big red-bound pharmacists' reference books, which was hanging on an azalea bush just outside the door of the de Montluzin residence.

Emily de Montluzin and her family, including a 19-year-old cousin visiting from France, weathered the storm at the house.

The home is built on a 24-foot bluff but when the tidal wave hit it, some of the water splashed over.

"We had candles lit and all of a sudden we saw water coming up through the two floor furnaces," she remembered. "It went down quickly, but it left a residue of sticky, smelly mud."

The family waded barefoot in the mud to save their shoes, then, when they finally got a chance to go to bed at about 2 a.m., found they had no water with which to wash their feet.

De Montluzin said water service was not restored for about six weeks and it was several weeks before public telephones were set to allow people to contact relatives.

Glowing trees, floating houses

As the shock and grief of Camille began to settle, numerous phenomenal tales began to emerge—stories of babies floating to safety on mattresses, of fragile items remaining untouched while everything around them was destroyed, of wind-driven pine needles piercing ceramic pots. The stories abounded.

Paul Torgeson of Pass Christian tells one such story.

Torgeson and his family had evacuated their apartment behind his parent's Henderson Avenue home for the relative safety of his brother's house in Pineville.

When he and his brother "crawled out onto the carport" at the height of the storm, Torgeson was so overwhelmed by an eerie phenomena taking place in the yard he forced his brother to go back inside with him.

"We saw the trees glowing. It was the strangest thing I've ever seen. My brother wanted to stay and watch but I told him 'let's get back inside,'" Torgeson said.

Torgeson, now 54, said he has since learned that the glow was an electrical phenomena, known as St. Elmo's Fire, that occurs when windspeeds are above 150 miles-per-hour.

The morning after, the normally 15-minute ride from his brother's to his home took two and-a-half hours, he said.

"We had to take chain saws and cut trees as we went. When we got to where Trinity Episcopal church had been, my mother was so disoriented she had no idea where we were. When I explained to her that that is where the church had been she started crying and said 'Let's go back, I don't want to see any more,'" Torgeson said.

When the Torgesons reached their property, his apartment was completely gone, his parent's home, however, was relatively unharmed except that it had floated off its pillars and came to rest in the middle of Front Street.

"That was lucky though, it had very little water damage and, because it was blocking a roadway, the Corp of Engineers had to move it back to its original position. My parents didn't have to pay to have it moved back," he said.

Rub marks on an oak tree near the house indicated it had floated 10 or 12 feet above the ground at one point," Torgeson said.

Chilling irony vivid still

Allen Mestayer of Waveland, 14 years old when Camille blew ashore, recalls walking with his father from where his family sought shelter on Jeff Davis Street to their home on Ballview Drive, near the beach.

As they walked past house after devastated house, Mestayer repeatedly implored his father, "That's not going to be our house is it daddy?" His father's fatalistic reply was simply, "I'm afraid so, son," Mestayer said.

The Mestayer home had been flooded by approximately six feet of water but remained intact, much of its contents, however, were destroyed.

Another of Mestayer's memories, like a tale from Believe It Or Not, ranks among the most chillingly ironic of the bizarre stories to arise out of the disaster and which still haunt the minds of everyone who survived Camille.

"My sister, Beth, had a book-on—the title of the book was Camille," Mestayer said.

Refuge sought at Camp Shelby

R.J. Sims was 13 when Camille struck, and his family spent the night with his grandfather in a two-story house which was three blocks from his Waveland home.

"The next morning I saw the mattress from my bed next to my grandfather's house," Sims said.

The survivor continued, "Our house was completely destroyed as it was pushed through a mobile home my family owned and had rented out."

His immediate family took refuge at Camp Shelby and were among the last to leave the center.

"When we returned to Waveland, we had no place to stay as so many homes were destroyed and those still standing had more people than they could handle," Sims recalled.

Sims said his eight-year-old sister had broken out in a rash and was taken to the hospital. It was determined that the rash was caused by fiberglass in the clothing which she had salvaged from their destroyed home.

A prized possession of Sims is a newspaper clipping of a photo of him and his mother at Camp Shelby which appeared in the Jackson Daily News.

The family got a temporary mobile home for housing.

Today Sims, his mother and sister now reside in three homes at the site where Camille destroyed their original home.

Military takes over, family/city history gone

Portia Labat of Bay St. Louis, now in her 90s, sat out that fateful night, 20 years ago, in her home on Easterbrook Street. Having lived through all the hurricanes to hit the Coast in the 20th century, including some of the most severe ever known to have touched the U.S. mainland, Labat was comparatively unruffled by Camille's intensity.

"The worst experience was after, when the town was under military control. When I see scenes from places where there are wars, I say I know what that is like," Labat said.

"I had to go get some ice and they even stopped me. I told them I lived in Bay St. Louis and I had to get some ice."

"I am asthmatic and the only way my brother in New Orleans could get in to check on us was to tell them I was seriously ill and get a pass from the Red Cross," she said.

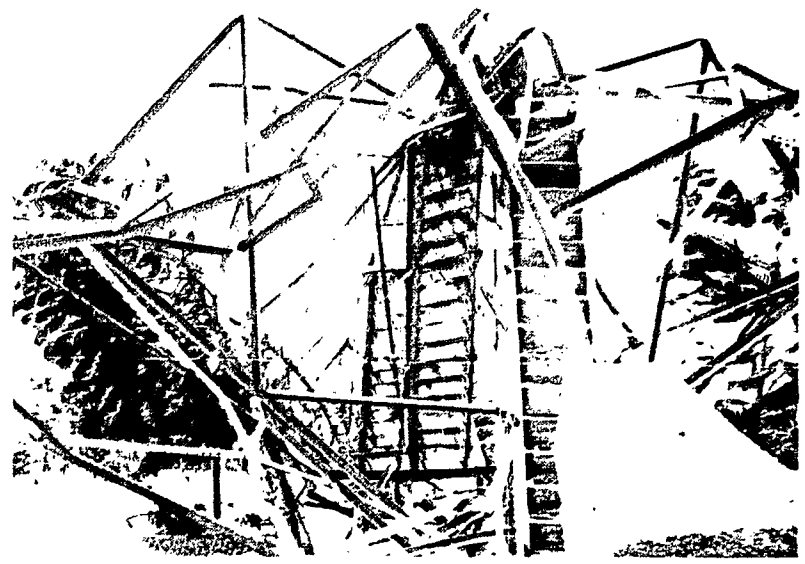

"The only water was from a well at the Seminary, and we had to eat breakfast and lunch at the high school. And we all had to line up and get inoculations, just like we were in the service," she said.

Labat said her house was sturdy, having been constructed by her father, a carpenter who built many buildings in Bay St. Louis.

"I can remember the 1915 storm, it also destroyed all the stores on the beach side of beach road. Many of the buildings destroyed in Camille on the beach side were built by my father," Labat said.

"I hope we never have another one that bad," she concluded.

Ladner saved clothes on back

Hancock County Supervisor Michael Ladner was in the Air Force and stationed at Keesler Air Force Base when Camille struck.

"I always consider myself a very lucky one as I was a resident of the Richelieu Apartments in Pass Christian and the last person to leave before Camille's deaths and destruction at the facility," Ladner recalls.

"I had just attended a V.F.W. convention at the Broadwater Beach Hotel. As I viewed reports of the storm, I decided it would be better to stay there to ride the storm out—and possibly there would be some food," Ladner said.

Ladner continued, "I lost everything I owned—all of my clothing, pick-up truck, boat, all types of fishing tackle. The only thing saved was the clothing on me."

"I reported to Keesler and then returned to Hancock County and helped set up aid stations in the county," Ladner said.

Ladner reported he had trouble finding a pair of shoes, as he worked day and night for two weeks in the county.

As he rode the storm out, Ladner recalled the roof leaking and waves splashing all around the Biloxi hotel.

Ladner said he hasn't been fishing since Camille and he was a regular angler both saltwater and freshwater.

A teenager recalls Camille

Lynette Carbon was only 13 or 14 years old when Hurricane Camille hit.

She was staying with about 25 family members in her older sister's home on St. Charles Street.

The A-frame building had only been completed the year before and had large glass windows in front, the type on which the lower part could be opened but the upper part was set into the wall. There was also a good deal of overhead protecting the windows, she said.

The family was prepared for the storm, with flashlights, radios and other items.

As the hurricane began to get stronger, the wind was blowing directly into the front windows.

"My brother-in-law and I were constantly going with towels to keep the rain from coming in and getting on the carpet," Carbon said, describing how the windows leaked even where the glass panes were set into the wall. "We did that for I don't know how long."

The storm got worse and it was decided that everyone should get into one of the smaller, inner rooms. The bathroom was too small and a bedroom big enough for everyone was chosen.

"We had all just walked in and my sister was the last one in; she was still standing in the doorway."

"That's when the roof went in the living room. The windows were broken and that glass started flying down the hallway," she said.

"The pieces were that thick," Carbon added, demonstrating by holding her fingers about a quarter to a half-inch apart.

"My sister started crying. We were all scared."

Everyone found places to sit, joined hands and began to pray. Carbon wound up sitting with her back to the wall which separated the bedroom from where the living room had been. She remembers looking down the row of people and silently communicating with a relative about her age.

"We could feel that wall being pushed by the wind," she said.

In spite of what happened during the storm, Carbon said she has many memories which are more remarkable about the aftermath of Camille. Almost all are positive memories about people helping each other and being helped.

"You would see people who were totally wiped out, who had nothing, trying to help other," she explained. "That's what was remarkable."

New programs, construction progress announced by Hancock school system

Changes in personnel within the Hancock County School District include four new teachers at Hancock North Central Elementary, Angela Stanford, William Holcomb, Tammy Moran and Thaddeus Williams.

At Gulfview Elementary, new teachers include Sue Hatten, Pamela Pickering and Daniel Marquar.

Applications for free and reduced school lunches will be sent home with all students the first day, Aug. 21. Parents are urged to complete and return these forms as soon as possible.

All students without applications on file by Sept. 5 will be required to pay the full price for lunch. Prices are $1.10 regular price; $4.00 for reduced lunches; $1.50 for adult lunches.

All kindergarten students not previously registered should be enrolled as soon as possible at appropriate schools. Please bring with kindergarten students a certified birth certificate and health certificate.

Open house at all Hancock County Schools will be Aug. 18 from 1-3 p.m. Parents are urged to attend the school at which their child is enrolled. This will provide a chance to meet teachers and gather pertinent information concerning students such as homework requirements, discipline procedures and goals set for the coming year.

Advanced Placement Physics and German will be offered at HNC High School this year via satellite. Students will work on computer terminals in addition to monitoring lessons on a large screen. Oklahoma State University will provide training of personnel this month.

Terry Randolph, superintendent of education, stated, "During the week of Aug. 7-11 slab work began on the new junior high and high school building. The metal frame work for the administrative building and activities building which houses the gym, cafeteria, band and industrial arts was started first."

"We expect work to progress very steadily once the slab work is begun. The goal for completion of the new building has been set at July 15, 1990."

Chapter I plans to implement a schoolwide program at Charles B. Murphy and Gulfview Elementary. This means that by mid-year, all students in the school will be on computer for math and reading. Individualized, graphic presentation of subject matter has made this system the most advanced in the state.

Eddie Danzey, who is assistant superintendent, is in charge of transportation, would like to remind the parents that the opening of school each year requires an adjustment of all routes and schedules.

"We have tried to stay as close as possible to existing routes and schedules, but due to an increase in pupils this year some changes have to be made," he said.

The first two weeks of school can be hectic at times. Parents can help by doing the following:

1) Have pupils at the assigned loading zones ten minutes early.

2) Encourage pupils to use extreme caution in getting to and from their assigned bus stop.

3) Remind them not to play on or near the road while waiting for the bus.

4) Be courteous to and follow the instructions of the bus driver.

"If the bus driver, pupils administrators and parents accept their responsibilities we will have a safe and orderly school year," said Danzey. "Driving is a privilege that can and will be taken away if rules and regulations are not adhered to."

Darlon Necaice and Russell Lee, supply store managers at Hancock North Central High School, urge all high school students to buy school supplies in the supply store at HNC. Teacher requirements for supplies are listed and sold at more reasonable prices than most stores.

THE MOST IMPORTANT LETTERS WHEN IT COMES TO DRUGS

Teaching your children the ABC's is fine, but you also need to teach them about drug abuse and the special importance of the letters "NO." Teach them the drug alphabet early in life, and help them from becoming another statistic in America's fastest growing disease—drug and alcohol addiction. Let them learn their ABC's in school, but teach them their "NO'S" at home.
